

Qutab Golf League (QGL) — Sponsorship Talking Points

Opening: Why We Are Reaching Out

We are calling from Game of Life Sports. We run the Qutab Golf League, the biggest golf league in Delhi NCR, now heading into Season 3. The league has grown from its earlier seasons into fifteen teams this year, which is a clear expansion signal, and it runs across four premium golf courses in the region. We wanted to bring this opportunity directly to you because your brand fits exactly the audience QGL has built around itself.

Why Delhi NCR, Why This Property

Delhi NCR is the largest golf market in India. It has the highest concentration of premium golf courses in the country, a large affluent population, a strong corporate golf culture, and an expanding public golf infrastructure. The region blends Gurugram's corporate concentration, Delhi's legacy wealth, and Noida's emerging affluent professionals into one audience, and that audience is fundamentally a decision maker audience.

Golf in India is shifting from being seen as an exclusive membership sport to becoming an aspirational urban lifestyle, driven by public courses, simulators, academies, social golf leagues, and beginner focused learning camps. QGL is positioned exactly where that future growth is happening, not in a shrinking pocket of exclusivity, but in expanding participation.

The Market Behind It

The numbers support the opportunity. India's golf market is valued at over two thousand five hundred crore rupees and is growing at eighteen to twenty two percent annually, with the golf tourism market projected to reach nine thousand crore rupees by 2033. India already has over one million active golfers, up from five hundred thousand in 2015, and youth participation has grown forty five percent in the last three years alone.

The demographic profile is exactly what a premium brand wants to reach. The average golfer is between thirty two and fifty five years old, in their peak earning years. Ninety five percent have an annual income above fifty lakh rupees, and seventy eight percent are business owners or C suite executives. Golf participation in India is still under one percent of the population compared to three to five percent in developed markets, which means there is still enormous runway for growth, and an early mover advantage for anyone who partners with a league like ours now.

What Makes QGL Different

QGL has built inclusivity directly into its league structure. Every team includes women golfers, junior golfers, and a mix of participant backgrounds, which is something sponsors are actively looking for today. Brands are increasingly seeking diversity led, women inclusive, family friendly, community driven sports properties, and QGL naturally aligns with modern ESG and inclusive brand narratives. In terms of format and energy, QGL behaves less like a traditional golf tournament and more like an IPL style sports property, with real city culture, team fandom, and creator first sports entertainment built in.

Proof It Works

QGL already has real traction behind it. Sponsors gain access to over five hundred decision makers each season, with genuine face time with high net worth individual participants who typically skip corporate hospitality altogether. The league has built national media spotlight, with print coverage alongside brand visibility across broadcast platforms, and status that comes with being known as a sponsor of QGL, which signals patronage that helps win talent, partners, and investors. On social media, individual posts and reels have reached anywhere from ninety five thousand to over three hundred and eighty thousand views, showing consistent organic engagement around the league.

The Broader Case for Golf Sponsorship

Golf sponsorship is fundamentally about access as currency. The real return on investment comes from proximity to decision makers, not simply from broadcast eyeballs. Sporting sponsorship activations create three to five times higher emotional affinity than traditional advertising, and this kind of association becomes a long term brand asset rather than a one time marketing spend. It builds brand association, meaning, equity, and cultural relevance over time.

What We Can Offer

We currently have four sponsorship tiers.

The Title Sponsor tier is priced at fifty lakh rupees and gives complete category monopoly, meaning zero dilution and instant synonymy with premium golf in Delhi.

The Powered By Sponsor tier is priced at twenty five lakh rupees and offers strong secondary visibility across the league.

The Sponsor's Team tier, a newly introduced offering, is priced at twenty lakh rupees. This one is different from a standard sponsorship. It lets a brand effectively own a QGL team and use it as a client experience platform, engaging thirty or more high value relationships across an entire season. Sponsors under this tier can invite different clients, partners, CXOs, and prospects to represent their team match by match, across cities including Delhi, Noida, Greater Noida, and Gurugram, and this turns the sponsorship into an actual business development tool rather than a one off invitation.

The Associate Sponsor tier is priced at nine lakh rupees and offers a lighter entry point with meaningful visibility for a brand that wants to test the association first.

Across every tier, sponsors receive on ground signage, digital and print amplification, and an end of season ROI report covering both on ground and digital activation, so the value of the partnership is measurable, not just promised.

The Season 3 Calendar

Season 3 runs across five key match days between the thirteenth of November and the sixteenth of December 2026, held at Qutab Golf Course, Jaypee Wishtown Golf Course, Jaypee Greens Golf and Spa Resort, and ITC Classic Golf and Country Club, with a networking dinner and the finals rounding out the season at Qutab Golf Course. The total prize pool for the top teams ranges from half a lakh to three and a half lakh rupees depending on final team count, giving the competitive side of the league real stakes.
